Louis Dornier is a classic Champagne using the three traditional grape varieties, Pinot Noir, Pinot Meunier and Chardonnay grown in chalky soil of the Champagne region of Northern France.

CHAMPAGNE BOLLINGER

In 1911, Georges Bollinger's British agent gave him the idea for the name Special Cuvée - "special" written the English way, without an accent. He thought the French expression "Brut sans année" was no match for such a subtle champagne...

More than a hundred years later, the name of Bollinger's key figure champagne still symbolizes both its expertise and its history.

MCLAREN VALE

SHINGLEBACK

Shingleback is owned and operated by the dynamic Davey family who first planted grapes in 1990 on land that their grandfather purchased in 1959. All fruit is hand-selected and hand-sorted from their own sustainable single estates or plots and John Davey looks after the winemaking.

McLaren Vale is famous for fruit-driven juicy Shiraz and Grenache and its population of 'gastronauts'; everyone seems to have a passion for food, ingredients and wine.

Shingleback is one of the most awarded family owned wineries in Australia and they set the wine world alight in 2006 when they won the legendary, and arguably Australia's top award, the Jimmy Watson Trophy having only released their first vintage in 1998. The Davey's favour hand-crafted wines using minimalist intervention in both the vineyards and winery as they believe that this gives truer expression and balance.

are located in the heart of the village of Chablis, where tradition and modernism live together. The 37 hectares of the vineyards of Domaine Collet are located on the best slopes of the right and left banks of the river Serein. This gives the wines their generosity and charm.

Antoine Ogier, a distant descendant of Ogier the Dane, in 1859 he began his trading business. In 1995 Didier Couturier, newly arrived at the company, established partnerships with wine-growers, takes the wine-making in hand and devises a new work plan focused on maturation. This period gives rise to the Ogier style: purity of fruit, freshness and depth. Each year, Didier Couturier scours the vineyards for the Rhone Valley's best terroirs, selecting from our own vineyards as well as from the region's top wine-growers. From North to South a precision approach from vine to wine making becomes the Ogier hallmark. Ogier embraces sustainability and has started to convert all of its vineyards to organic cultivation.

Muscadet is a very unique style of wine and a tremendous choice for those people looking for originality and for anyone looking to steer clear of standards and stereotypes.

The Château du Cléry is situated on a siliceous-clay soil that is crossed by a schist vein which will give minerality and salinity of our wines. The clay is the backbone of our wines. The silica will give the tenderness, the aromas and the delicacy to our wines. The specificities of the subsoils of Château du Cléry give the wines their unique personality.

ALSACE

Wines from Alsace are low on the radar of the average Irish wine tippler, and are rarely found among the cheapest wines in a shop – if they are even on the shelves. However, for those in the know, they are a hidden treasure.

Unlike the majority of French wines, the grape variety is nearly always stated on the label. Alsace wines are rarely oaked and many of them are highly aromatic. They are great with food, including spiced food from South, South East and East Asia which are often problematic for wine matching.

GERMANY

JOHANN BRUNNER

The Brunner family have been producing quality wines for three generations, producing consumer friendly focused styles of wines using minimalist intervention practices in their modern wine making cellars.

Riesling is a light-skinned, aromatic grape of German origin which is – if the majority of top wine critics are to be believed – the world's finest white-wine grape variety.

For many, the claim above may seem at odds with the sea of chaptalized, low-quality wine exported from Germany in the late 20th Century. In truth, very little of that infamous wine was Riesling at all (Riesling became a scapegoat for higher-yielding grapes such as Muller-Thurgau and Silvaner), but the reputation has nonetheless stuck. No less unshakeable a stereotype is of Riesling as just a sweet grape, used only to make sticky wines.

Although founded on a basic truth (Rieslings are among the finest sweet wines in the world), this stereotype blindly ignores the fact that the majority of Riesling wines across the world are either dry or off-dry.

TRAMBUSTI

Chianti Trambusti Ltd was founded in 1934 by Orlando Trambusti, an expert wine lover who decided to parlay his natural avocation into work. His first activity was running a small storehouse in the municipality of Greve in Chianti. In 1956 the company moved to Via Pistoiese, where it remains today. Orlando Trambusti, founder of the company and fomenter of its steady growth, died in 1982. From that moment his son Giovanni took the reins of Chianti Trambusti. Giovanni continued following the guidelines set down by his enterprising father - selecting with care and skill the best wines in Tuscany, to be bottled and delivered to loyal consumers in Italy and abroad. Thanks also to their great contribution to the company, today Chianti Trambusti is a great wine-making estate with modern and functional equipment to produce and bottle wines of impeccable qualifications and value.

The Montepulciano wine harvest takes place between late September and early October. The carefully-selected grapes are then destemmed, crushed and subjected to alcoholic maceration

CORTESE DI GAVI

The Gavi, (or Cortese di Gavi) DOCG is situated in the southern part of Piedmont, in northwestern Italy. The town of Gavi is at the centre of the production zone while Cortese is the indigenous white grape variety from which it is made. Due to its close proximity with Liguria, its winemaking and gastronomic traditions are more Ligurian than Piemontese, which could explain the light and fruity style of this white wine.

Despite being more closely linked in style with its neighboring region's wines, Gavi is still considered Piedmont's white jewel in the crown.

Gavi was Italy's first white wine to gain international repute and is still considered one of the top-ranking Italian whites today.

SICILY

In the last 20 years Sicilian wines have improved in quality, and together with Apulia, Sicily is now the largest producer of Italian wine in Italy. Many grapes are made into raisins, and Sicilian grapes also play a large role in creating dessert wines, which require a higher concentration of grapes and are consumed in smaller quantities.

The high-altitude of some Sicilian vineyards creates climatic conditions similar to northern regions, with the advantage of much more sunlight. Overall however, the predominant climate is hot and dry which results in characteristically robust and powerful wines.

SARDINIA

Sardinia's wines have little in common with those produced in the rest of Italy. The Island's remote Mediterranean location, as well as the historic influence from other cultures, gives the wines a unique character that might be considered to have more in common with Spanish than Italian wines. Historically, whites were produced in high volume with relatively high alcohol, although more recently Sardinia's producers have been reducing yields in order to focus on quality rather than quantity. This shift was a more recent phenomenon in Sardinia than in other parts of Italy, with many winemakers reluctant to change their methods in order to seek out commercial success. Quality has prevailed, and now in addition to the single DOCG, there are 19 DOC appellations.

BAROSSA VALLEY

In 1999, Franc Rocca and family converted a former cow paddock into a state-of-the-art winery, to be known as Rocland Estate.

The easy going nature inherited from the Rocca family's European background, together with an experienced winemaking team, combines to produce food friendly, approachable wines from Rocland's vineyards and surrounding contracted vineyards.

In the James Halliday 2012 Wine Companion, Rocland Estate was the only South Australian winery to be awarded a Top 10 placing in 'The best of the best' Dark Horse Wineries of 2012.

Rocland Estate believes great wine is made from the vines, sun, rain and rich earth. The love from our vineyards to the team in the winery, we are a group of easy-going individuals, who work hard and enjoy making a great drop.

Our belief is that good wine is made with passion, heart and soul. Enjoy!

CLARE VALLEY

CLARE VALLEY PRODUCES THE BEST RIESLING IN AUSTRALIA. AND ARGUABLY ANYWHERE IN THE NEW WORLD.

The Courtesan is the epitome of good breeding. Wonderful posture, a delicacy of frame and a fragrance to haunt the most sated of olfactory functions. Behind closed doors though, the Courtesan shocks with its racy charms, flirting outrageously with "come-drink-me" eyes. Don't be fooled, The Courtesan means business, seducing even the most coy Riesling drinker with its extravagant perfumed nose and beautiful frame, corseted by mouth-watering fruit, the Courtesan always makes a lasting impression.
